

Confronting adversity: Health leaders taking on today's challenges

WHLNet Broadcast, sponsored by the Canadian Health Leadership Network

Health leaders today face an increasingly complex landscape marked by a wide range of healthcare challenges, from navigating the aftermath of the global pandemic to addressing growing health disparities, staffing shortages, and the rise of chronic diseases. This event will focus on current and emerging healthcare challenges, exploring how leaders are responding and adapting strategically to complex issues in healthcare.

While political factors explored in the broadcast on February 20 remain relevant, this event will broaden the focus to explore healthcare challenges that leaders face, regardless of the political environment in which they operate. The focus will shift to the innovative leadership approaches, successes, insights, and future strategies for addressing evolving healthcare challenges internationally.

Our diverse panel includes healthcare leaders from across the world, from Kenya (Lydia Okotoyi), India (Gaurav Loria), Peru (Juan Limo) and Belgium (Mathieu Louiset). All are in a positions to share unique insights about challenges in their healthcare systems and the leadership practices and processes they believe are vital for leaders to confront adversity and enhance healthcare delivery.

Following the panel presentations we will then invite all of our WHLNet participants to engage—in small dialogue sessions with panel members—in a conversation about their own challenges and practical leadership responses to them.

For regular participants, please note that the time of the broadcast has changed to take place 2 hours earlier than usual: 9:00 AM Peru / 7:00 AM Canada Pacific / 10:00 AM Canada Eastern / 3:00 PM UK / 5:00 PM Kenya / 7:30 PM India.

Please join us on May 15!
